

Figures for the Human Security Report 2012

Figure 6.4 The Shift in How Intrastate Conflicts End, 1950–2004

Data Source: UCDP/HSRP Dataset.

The share of intrastate conflicts ending in victories—the most stable termination type—has declined since the end of World War II. This has contributed to the recent elevated recurrence rates in recent years.

Note: Unlike the other line graphs in this section, which show yearly trends, these lines display changes from one decade to the next.

Citation and Data Information

Human Security Report Project. Human Security Report 2012: Sexual Violence, Education, and War: Beyond the Mainstream Narrative. Vancouver: Human Security Press, 2012.

Uppsala Conflict Data Program (UCDP), Uppsala University, Uppsala, Sweden/ Human Security Report Project, School for International Studies, Simon Fraser University, Vancouver, Canada.